LANCASTER NEW SUPERINTENDENT DIXON SCHOOLS

Board Of Education Announces Reductions In All Salaries

Dixon high school and grade school instructors will receive a five per cent reduction in salaries when they resume their duties next fall, it was announced by the school board today. Most noticeable among the appointments for the 1932-33 school year was the announcement that A. H. Lancaster will be superintendent of the Dixon school system with B. J. Frazee principal of the high school. It was stated that I. B. Potter, the present superintendent, would not be a member of next season's staff of school employees, but his plans for the future were not made public.

The reduction in salaries affects all employees of the school system from janitors to superintendent. The salary of the superintendent, which formerly amounted to $5,200 annually with a $300 expense account, totaling $5,500, has been reduced to $4,400 which is divided to provide a salary of $4,200 and an expense account of $200.

Saving of $11,000. The salary of the principal of the high school, which formerly amounted to $3,750 annually has been reduced to $3,000. The salary of the agricultural instructor, which amounted to $3,000 including $200 for expenses, has been reduced to $2,000 annually with a $200 expense account for field work. The board of education through the reductions in salaries anticipates a saving of approximately $11,000 this year.

D. C. Austin, manual training instructor in the high school, has had his duties increased. Under his new contract he becomes assistant athletic director in the high school and will have charge of the physical training of the grade school pupils, in addition to his former duties.

Two teachers will be discontinued next year in the economy program adopted by the newly organized school board—the speech-writing and physical training instructors. These duties, however, will be carried on by other members of the faculty. The present high school faculty and grade school instructors will be unchanged, all having returned their signed contract to the board.

Needed Improvements.

The board will later select a principal to serve the South Central grade school and the present program provides for the employment of a supervisor of the gardens.

Only necessary improvements will be made to the school properties this summer, the outstanding improvement being the work which is now under way at the high school. Workmen started yesterday in repointing the outside walls of the high school and when this work is completed, the entire exterior will be treated with a water-proofing process.

Suicide Attempt Fatal To Another

Chicago, May 19.—(AP)—A mother of three children flooded her home with gas today in an attempt at suicide. Her plan failed, but the resultant blast burst the bungalow into a mass of wreckage and buried a pedestrian under a shower of bricks.

Leo Karkowski of Druze Lake, Ill., was killed instantly. The wall of brick and stone severed one leg, and rescuers had to dig into a mound of debris to recover his body. He formerly was a Deputy Sheriff.

At the hospital, Mrs. Della Beltrami, 34, confessed she had turned on the gas in the kitchen stove and sat down to await death. She had been ill. The pilot light ignited the gas, lifting the roof and bursting the walls like paper. She was treated for severe burns, but physicians said she would recover. Her three children had left for school just before the explosion. Her husband, official of a furniture manufacturing house, said he knew of no reason for a suicide attempt.

Rehearing In Bank Liability Pleaded

Springfield, Ill., May 19.—(AP)—Reconsideration of the Supreme Court's ruling on liability of stockholders of state banks was asked late yesterday by the Merchants State Bank of Centralia, which contended that the sixty years of precedent had been upset by the court's decision.

The court had ruled that liability could extend even to heirs of stockholders, and that stockholders who sold their holdings before the bank closed could be held liable if the bank's obligations were incurred while they held the stock.

The decision will overturn property rights that have been vested for many years and unsettle estates of stockholders in banking corporations for an indefinite period of time. The rehearing petition is being filed in the Supreme Court during the June term.

RASKOB ONE OF POOL CLEARING ENORMOUS SUM

Cleared $5,000,000 Week: Tumulty In Without A Cent

Washington, May 19.—(AP)—How John J. Raskob and others pooled $4,924,079 from a week's pool operations on new Radio stock in March 1929, was related today in the Senate's investigation of the stock market.

The investment which brought in almost $5,000,000 in that short time was placed at $12,683,000. Those listed by William A. Gray, counsel for the inquiry, as having pooled handsome returns along with the Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, included:

Percy A. Rockefeller, Charles M. Schwab, Walter P. Chrysler, Mrs. M. J. Meehan, H. B. Swope, Mrs. David Sarnoff, W. C. Durant, T. P. Maas, J. A. Stillman, Fred J. Fisher, L. J. Fisher, William A. Fisher, A. J. Fisher, E. F. Fisher and Charles T. Fisher.

Testimony also was introduced that persons who put up no money for the pool shared in the returns, among them J. P. Tumulty, secretary to the late President Wilson, and Eddie Dowling, the actor.

Senator Glass (D.) classed it the same "as gambling at a card table with a card up the sleeve."

The pool operated through three firms, Meehan & Co., W. E. Hutton and Block Maloney & Co.

TIGHTEN TRADE RULES

New York, May 19.—(AP)—Reports current for several days that the New York Stock Exchange was tightening up its restrictions on short selling by requiring members to demand higher margins against short accounts were confirmed in authoritative quarters today.

While no formal announcement was made by the Exchange, it was learned that every member firm handling speculative accounts was advised by the Business Conduct Committee it must demand and maintain a margin of ten points a share on all short accounts regardless of price of the stock. Moreover, members were ordered to compute such margin separately in the case of a customer having both a long and short position. Under this ruling an excess margin in a long account cannot be used as margin against a short position.

Interests close to the exchange described the ruling as an "interpretation" of the position taken by the exchange on short selling last fall.

Bloomfield, Ia., May 19.—(AP)—Davis county authorities today were seeking Robert Doyle Dickson, alias Dwight Dickson, of St. Louis, who escaped from the county jail last night.

SHOE SALESMEN HERE TO STUDY NEW FALL LINE

Increased Production In Plant Is Hope Of Johnson Co.

The entire sales force of the William B. Johnson Shoe Company of this city is in Dixon this week spending several days in the factory inspecting the new fall line of shoes. A. M. Lynds of Cincinnati, Ohio, president of the Premier Pattern Company, makers of all the patterns for the William B. Johnson shoes, and E. L. Bonneau of the Brown Shoe Company offices at St. Louis are meeting with the sales force at the business sessions.

The William B. Johnson fall line in one department is featuring variety vogue for sub-debs and women preferring medium height heels. This line bears a registered trade mark which is being featured among the trade. Another department presents another trade mark series known as the Gym-Nas-Tic which is meeting with universal acceptance because of its unique perfect plan of fitting and wearing qualities. Both lines have become well known to Dixon people and are to be seen at the Eichler Brothers Annex.

The William B. Johnson Shoe Company has been in existence in Dixon for one year. While general business conditions have affected the increased sale of shoes, the new Dixon firm has been successful in identifying itself with some of the finest accounts in the United States, which speaks for the general acceptance of the Dixon made shoes.

Feature New Shades

The new fall lines which will go out to the trade over the week end when the salesmen leave Dixon with their samples, embody the deeper shades of brown, known to the trade as cinder brown, Porto-Indies brown, leaf brown, madeiro brown shading to the swaggar brown. The various styles are attractively brought out in ties and strap pumps and unlined new types in ties and ghillie effects with piping and light airy trims in both straps and pumps. In addition sport types are brought out in harmonizing and contrasting effects in the new fall shades.

President William B. Johnson in outlining the prospect for the ensuing six months stated to The Telegraph today:

"We anticipate increased business this season and the outlook after the next six months is an upward trend in the shoe manufacturing trade. This applies not only to the Dixon factory but to the shoe trade generally."

Through the efforts of Mr. Johnson in connection with the Brown Shoe Company lines, it is hoped to develop sufficient business to make a fair run in the volume of the Dixon factory during the summer months.

Ill. Congressman's Attack Stirs Huff

Chicago, May 19.—(AP)—A demand that the proposed Senate investigation of activities of government-aided cooperatives and the private grain trade be made "without further delay" was voiced by President Charles E. Huff of the Farmers National Grain Corporation in a letter made public today. The letter was sent to Senator Charles L. McNary (R) of Oregon, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, which would conduct the investigation.

Huff criticized United States Representative William H. Dierich (D) of Illinois for a statement attributed to him in a newspaper, May 12, and called it "one of the latest attacks on the Federal Farm Board, the Farmers National and the Grain Stabilization Corporation."

Dierich was quoted as saying, the letter said, that officials of the stabilization and grain corporations "have operated the government-regulated corporations for individual profit."

"This," wrote Huff, "is a direct charge that officials of these corporations have been guilty of graft and can not be permitted to go unchallenged."

FEDERAL AGENTS CONFUSED OVER WHAT THEY GOT

Federal Judge Orders Dismissal Of Their Prisoner

Chicago, May 19.—(AP)—William C. Bracken, owner of the Fox hotel, two miles east of Ottawa, Ill., was acquitted by Federal Judge George A. Carpenter of a charge of selling liquor. The court termed the evidence too contradictory for conviction.

Two prohibition agents, Edward A. Wenz and George R. Whitlock, testified they bought beer and sandwiches at Bracken's place Jan. 13 and sampled the beverage with a tube. The government chemist, they said, found 3.51 per cent alcoholic content.

Irving O. Cole, another agent who served a search warrant two weeks later, testified he found only a half keg of near beer testing within the allowed alcoholic limit.

Bracken denied selling illegal beer and was supported by his son Clem and an employee, John Markowitz. They also charged in testimony that Agents Wenz and Whitlock were intoxicated when they entered the hotel and that Wenz slept, leaning on the counter, for a half hour.

Wenz admitted they had stopped at William Trapp's place and, Gateway Inn at Streator, Ill., before reaching the Bracken place and had partaken of beer, whiskey and gin at those places. He denied intoxication.

Charles Beita, truck driver for the Ottawa Products Company, testified he had never seen any kegs in the Fox hotel cellar other than the near-beer kegs he delivered.

Bracken acknowledged he had pleaded guilty and paid $100 fine in 1927 and again in 1929 for violating the state liquor laws. His attorney, H. L. Richardson of Ottawa, argued that the agents must have confused the samples at their Ottawa headquarters.

WEST BROOKLYN FARMER HANGED SELF THIS MORN

George Meister, 69, In Ill Health, Ended Life With Rope

George Meister, aged 69 years, a prominent retired farmer and a resident of West Brooklyn and vicinity for almost 25 years, suicided at his home this morning between 7:30 and 8 o'clock by hanging himself to a rafter in the barn. He had been suffering from ill health for several weeks and is believed to have become despondent. It was reported that he had previously threatened to take his life.

Mrs. Meister was absent from her home this morning for a half hour between 7:30 and 8 o'clock attending church and when she returned home, missed her husband. She observed the barn door opened and immediately became suspicious and summoned neighbors, who found the body suspended from rafters in the barn and still warm. The body was cut down and artificial respiration was resorted to but he had expired and Coroner Frank M. Banker of Franklin Grove was summoned.

Mr. Meister had lived in West Brooklyn and vicinity for the past 25 years and had followed the vocation of farming. He retired a few years ago to make his home in West Brooklyn. He is survived by his wife; one son, Nicholas Meister of Rochelle, and three daughters, Mrs. Jacob Bulfer of Sublette, Mrs. Antonie Becker of May township and Mrs. John Paley of Amboy.

Question Chicago Youths On Murder

Chicago, May 19.—(AP)—Two young Chicagoans, Henry Decker and Bernard Batjic, were arrested today for questioning concerning the slaying of Policeman Edward Rippon of Madison, Wis.

They were arrested in their homes by Prosecuting Attorney Carl Christianson of Madison, Sheriff Fred Finn of Madison and Sergeant William Shea of the Chicago Detective Bureau.

Rippon was found shot and beaten to death on the outskirts of Madison Monday night. An automobile stolen in Chicago, and believed to have been used by the slayers, was found abandoned in McHenry, Ill. A blood-clotted pipe matted with hair the same shade as Rippon's was found in the automobile.

It was believed the men had killed Rippon when he attempted to arrest them.

Four witnesses to the slaying of Officer Rippon looked at the suspects at the Detective Bureau today and all said they were not the men. Chief of Detectives William Shoemaker decided nevertheless to hold them for further investigation.

CHARGES DISMISSED

Chicago, May 19.—(AP)—Charges of embezzlement against Walter J. Walsh, former postmaster at McHenry, Ill., were dismissed today on motion of the government to dismiss the indictment. A shortage of $183 was alleged, but the Attorney-General sent word that it had been made good.

STREATOR BANK ROBBER WANTED IN WOODFORD CO.

One Of Gang Arrested In Oak Park After Pistol Battle

Chicago, May 19.—(AP)—Michael Sperna, 29, who was captured in suburban Oak Park after a pistol fight with the police and identified as an alleged member of the band that robbed the Union National Bank of Streator, Ill., of $52,000, may be turned over to Woodford county authorities for prosecution.

A warrant charging him with participation in the holdup of the State Bank of Minook, Ill., last January was turned over to Oak Park authorities last night by Ross Saunders of the Illinois Bankers' Association, who said the bank's president, Frank C. Pifer, has identified Sperna through a photograph.

Earlier in the day, Saunders informed the authorities victims of last Monday's Union National robbery in Streator also have identified the man as one of the seven robbers who held the cashier and his family captive all night and made him open the vault in the morning.

The records of two men captured with Sperna are being checked to determine whether they are wanted anywhere. Officials said they have not determined when Sperna would be sent to Eureka, Woodford county seat.

TWO OF CHICAGO KIDNAPERS PLEAD GUILTY IN COURT

Change Pleas As Trial Is Getting Under Way This Morn

Chicago, May 19.—(AP)—Two of the four men charged with kidnapping Mrs. Georgia Gehrt pleaded guilty today as testimony was about to be given in their trial. It was understood the two, William Thomas and John Pingera, were to be sentenced to life imprisonment.

Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks announced that the state would recommend life imprisonment and he indicated the two might take the state's witnesses against the two other defendants, former Assistant State's Attorney Ward C. Swallow and Edward Finnen.

Court Refuses Bargain
It was reported that Thomas and Pingera offered yesterday, after a jury had been completed, to plead guilty in return for penalties no greater than 25 years imprisonment but that the court declined to bargain with them.

The defense, arguing that the guilty plea of two of the men would prejudice the jurors against the other two, moved for the withdrawal of a juror and asked that a mistrial be declared.

Judge Philip L. Sullivan denied the motion and said he would inform the jury that Pingera and Thomas were no longer on trial before it.

"You can't deceive them that way," said Attorney James M. Burke. "There will be conjectures in their minds that they have pleaded guilty."

Although the present trial involves only the kidnapping of Mrs. Gehrt, the same gang is also alleged to have kidnapped her husband Dr. Max Gehrt, releasing the pair after payment of $2,000 ransom.

Impersonated Officers

Dr. and Mrs. Gehrt were driving in Chicago the night of Dec. 10, 1931, when their car was halted by a gang riding in two automobiles. The kidnappers said they were "from the State's Attorney's office" but refused to produce credentials.

Dr. Gehrt started to drive away but was stopped when one of the men fired, puncturing the tires of his car.

The couple was driven to a house in the southern section of the city. The kidnappers first demanded $50,000 and gradually reduced their demands to $5,000. Mrs. Gehrt was freed to get the money and Dr. Gehrt was finally released after paying a little over $2,000.

Arrested In Trap

The suspected kidnappers were arrested in a trap laid by police with the help of Mrs. Gehrt, an attractive blonde. She won the confidence of a member of the gang and made a "date" with that lured him into a trap.

One of the men arrested, Neil Montague, alias Albert Russell, escaped from the county jail by changing clothes with a brother who was visiting his cell. He walked blithely out of the front door of the jail and has not been seen since.

"Roving Parole" Is Given Lucas

Springfield, Ill., May 19.—(AP)—Delaying action on full pardon for Jesse Lucas of Mt. Carmel who served a long term in prison for a murder he did not commit, the state Board of Pardons and Paroles today announced it had granted Lucas a "roving parole," which was next best to pardon.

This "roving parole" will permit Lucas to go and come as he chooses, without restriction, whereas the parole previously granted him held him in Illinois and subjected him to strict supervision. Lucas in Mt. Carmel said he expected the full pardon before long.

The murder of Clyde Showalter, southern Illinois stock dealer, was the crime for which Lucas was given a life sentence. His conviction, it was alleged when he won a parole, was based in perjured evidence.

60 Americans In China Endangered

Nanking, May 19.—(AP)—The safety of 60 Americans, most of them missionaries, was threatened today at Pengu by a host of 20,000 Chinese Communists which was overturning northern Anhwei province.

The Communists had surrounded a force of 7,000 Nanking troops west of Pengu and threatened to cut the Tientsin-Pukow Railway south of there, blocking the arrival of reinforcements to aid the embattled government troops.

Reports from Americans at Pengu said they doubted the Communists would be able to capture the city, but the apprehension was acute.

WORLD'S BIGGEST AIRSHIP STARTS FOR SWISS PORT

DO-X Left New York For Ocean Flight Early This A. M.

Halifax, N. S., May 19.—(AP)—The German airplane DO-X, returning to Europe, was reported by the steamer Cavalier as passing Cape Canso, N. B. at 11:30 A. M. EST, today. She was flying low through clear weather toward her first scheduled stop, at Harbor Grace, N. F.

BULLETIN

Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., May 19.—(AP)—Amelia Earhart Putnam took off from Teterboro airport today for Harbor Grace, N. F., on the first leg of what she hopes will be the first solo flight by a woman across the Atlantic. The takeoff was at 2:16 P. M. EST.

Tomorrow night, weather permitting, she plans to soar out over the ocean to follow along the perilous path through the skies she helped to break four years ago with two male companions—the first woman to fly the Atlantic.

Her takeoff today was unannounced. She is flying a fast Lockheed monoplane, with a cruising radius of 3,200 miles.

Mrs. Putnam's plan was to stop at St. John, N. B., for the night, but it was said she might push on to Harbor Grace.

She was accompanied on the first leg of her flight by Bernt A. Balchen, who piloted Admiral Richard E. Byrd over the South Pole, and who has prepared her monoplane for the flight, and by Eddie Gorski, a plane mechanic.

New York, May 19.—(AP)—The German airliner DO-X, its great motors roaring in the silence of Long Island Sound, took off at 4:05 o'clock (EST) this morning for Harbor Grace, N. F., on the first lap of its return trip to Germany.

The huge seaplane was flown from North Beach to Manhasset Bay late last night. The Radio Marine Corporation said its reports indicated the reason for the move was a belief that Manhasset Bay afforded the heavily loaded plane a more direct runway than would the North Beach water stretch.

The airliner was heavily loaded yesterday for its long flight. A full supply of fuel and provisions was placed aboard, and Captain Christianson, after taking his craft to a point off the J. P. Morgan estate on Long Island, waited for the dawn. There was a crew of 14 aboard.

The DO-X had been thoroughly overhauled since its arrival in New York last August 27. Plans are to remain in Newfoundland until favorable weather reports for her flight over the Atlantic to the Azores are received.

She is bound for Lake Constance, Switzerland, her home port, which she left in November, 1930.

CHAS. SCHWAB SAYS COST OF GOVT. TOO HIGH

Steel Magnate Calls On Government To Restore Credit

New York, May 19.—(AP)—Charles M. Schwab today reaffirmed his optimism for the future but asserted that costs of government must be reduced and existing credit jams broken before business could revive.

In his semi-annual presidential address to the American Iron & Steel Institute Mr. Schwab, chairman of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, said "a most important" prerequisite for the restoration of public confidence was "the demonstration by Federal and local government that they can and will live within their incomes under stress of necessity."

"The Federal budget must be balanced in order to protect our national credit," he said, "and in view of the vastly depleted ability of the public to pay, it must be balanced chiefly through the measure of reduced expenditures."

The steel industry, he declared, has put its own house in order and the Federal Reserve System is doing its part.

"But, above all, the Federal government which is the heart of our national structure, must balance its budget and restore confidence there. From there, confidence, which is the life-blood of trade, will be transfused into our retailers of finance—the banks—to re-establish that faith which is so necessary to the flow of credit. God speed the day!"

"I am still an optimist, even amid present conditions. I continue to have hope and belief in our future because I have lived so long and have seen our people work their way out of so many trying situations."

ANONYMOUS TIP
IN LINDBERGH
CASE REVEALED

officials investigating this matter, he said, started an investigation of Mrs. Ford along other lines.

Ready to Settle
"It was found," he said, "that two weeks ago she had announced she was ready to settle a $40,000 action that was pending against her."

"They said they checked on her absence from school and found she had been away from February 25 through March 1."

"We also found that in 1914 she pleaded guilty to grand larceny in Brooklyn and was given a suspended sentence."

The detectives arrived at 33 Riverside Drive shortly after 3 o'clock and were told that Mrs. Ford was not at home. A woman who said she lived with her told them she expected her about 4 o'clock.

(Time is Eastern Daylight.)
The detectives subsequently made a secret check of the house with a woman believed to be a daughter of Mrs. Ford. Their investigation was not known but it was presumed that they wished to question her.

REVEAL OLD TIP
Newark, N. J., May 19.—(AP)—The Newark Evening News said today that 10 days after the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby, Chief of Police William Walter of Trenton received an anonymous letter directing police to "follow the Lindbergh telephone wires" and the baby and "the three other men" would be found.

The body of the Lindbergh baby was found a week ago today close to the main road from Hopewell to Princeton. Along that road special wires laid by police conducting the investigation from the Lindbergh garage.

Chief Walter wrote "attention" across the face of the letter, the paper said, and forwarded it to the police at Hopewell. He never received any report as to investigation of the letter.

The News said Chief Walter favored the theory that the letter might have been written by one of four men two kidnapped the little baby.

Text of Letter
The text of the letter, as published in the News, follows:

"Mr. Chief:
"I am writing this letter from New York. I am going home to Canada. When I get to Buffalo I will mail it to you. That will give me more time to safely escape. I figured I'm in enough trouble. I got cold feet and the fellows knew I promised not to squeal and they gave me money and I'm going home."

"Maybe I won't get caught. We all thought we could make some easy money. We got a place near Elizabeth, N. J., and one of the fellows who is pretty smart runs a wire to this place and listens to everything the Lindberghs say."

"He must be smart, because every time the telephone rings he picks up the receiver and never tells me he always says 'I never knew I was so smart.'"

"The Lindbergh baby is taken very good care of and is feeling fine when I left the fellows, only it cries too much and the fellows are afraid somebody will hear it. Nobody will hurt it because they all like it. The baby has lots of tops and a small black dog."

The fellows don't want no more ransom."

Sorry and Fraid
"They are all sorry and afraid. There is three more left now. We already stayed in this place eight weeks. I must soon catch the train. I love the Lindbergh kid. I don't want to see him hurt."

"I don't know where is the name of the street or the road, but not far from Elizabeth, N. J., when we took the crib we road 55 minutes and not very fast because somebody would see it."

"I quit the fellows because they don't agree. Follow the Lindbergh telephone wire and you will find the baby and the three fellows. The fellows were pretty nervous."

"If I did not like the baby I would not write this, but if you want the baby and the fellows you must keep this secret. These fellows have a radio and read plenty newspapers. If you catch the fellows and the baby you will let me go free?"

The letter was signed simply, "Thank You" and bore no name. It was printed with pencil. The paper was blue lined and of a cheap grade. The letter was postmarked Buffalo, N. Y., March 10, at 6:30 A. M. The printing was similar to that on a postcard mailed from Newark a day or so after the kidnapping.

CURTIS IS JAILED.
Hopewell, N. J., May 19.—(AP)—Superintendent of State Police H. Norman Schwarzkopf announced today that there is "nothing that would in any way link John H. Curtis of Norfolk with the actual kidnappers of the Lindbergh baby and the collection of the ransom money."

Curtis was jailed at Flemington yesterday following his confession he had perpetrated a hoax on the Lindberghs in claiming falsely he was in direct contact with the kidnapers of their baby.

After the confession investigation was immediately begun as to Curtis' whereabouts on the night of March 1 when the baby was kidnapped and the night of April 2 when the $50,000 ransom was paid by Dr. John F. Condon. Schwarzkopf's statement today came as a result of this investigation.

"Jafie" Cooperates.
After exonerating Curtis of implication in the actual kidnapping and collection of the ransom money, Schwarzkopf said that Dr. Condon had been most cooperative with police and had offered to come to Hopewell or go anywhere else with the investigators.

"A message received from his daughter this morning," Schwarzkopf said, "indicates that Dr. Condon's physician has ordered that he rest for several days before his activities are resumed. As soon as Dr. Condon is rested we will continue taking him around."

Schwarzkopf's statement also made comment on the telegram from Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, in which the Norfolk associate in the Curtis activities declined to come to Hopewell, but said he would give all information to police going to Norfolk.

"Under these circumstances," said Schwarzkopf, "it will not be possible to confront Mr. Curtis with Mr. Peacock, which at this time we are very anxious to do. There is no legal way in which we can force Mr. Peacock's presence in either Hopewell or Flemington."

Possible Penalties.
Curtis, after ten weeks of promise as a negotiator for the return of the child alive, was in jail at Flemington. The charge was obstructing justice. Conviction provides a penalty of three years in jail, a $1,000 fine or both.

The 47-year-old boatbuilder, who blames financial worries for his attempt to foist his gigantic hoax upon the world, waived preliminary hearing when he was called to answer the charge late yesterday at the Lindbergh home.

The sight of jail and iron bars loomed rancor and he spoke bitterly of a fellow Norfolk negotiator, the Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, and slightly of the third member of the Norfolk group, Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired.

The clergyman, Curtis said, was a "publicity fiend" and joined the hoax for the publicity it would bring. This the clergyman, at Norfolk, denied, expressing doubt that Curtis would make such a statement.

Admiral Guiltless.
Burrage was referred to by Curtis as "an old fogey." The retired Commander has been exonerated by police of any knowledge that he was lending his name and aid to a hoax fashioned about the tragic fate of the son of his friend, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Two telegraphic requests by state police that the Rev. Mr. Dobson-Peacock come to New Jersey and tell the authorities what he knows of the Curtis deception were answered last night with a counter proposal in which the clergyman suggested that the police come to him.

"I stand ready," he telegraphed to Col. Norman Schwarzkopf, "to meet you at any time in Norfolk." Another intermediary—Jafie.

In Congress Today

Washington, May 19.—(AP)—

Whether an oil tariff should be included in the billion dollar tax measure was debated today by the Senate while its banking committee renewed the investigation of the New York Stock Exchange.

Opponents of a proposed oil tariff warned the Senate that if the revenue bill is to include duties on oil, coal, copper and lumber a move was in order for complete tariff revision. That would require months.

While the House was considering the War Department appropriation bill in the Senate, Tydings, (D., Md.) asserted that "the locust swarm of lobbyists—an expression employed recently by President Hoover—is very close to the highest powers of this government."

He made this statement in opposing an oil tariff.

Advocates of birth control testified before the House Ways and Means committee while opponents were heard by the Senate Judiciary committee.

TABLEAU
OCKED arm in arm they cross the way,
The black boy and the white
The golden splendor of the day,
The sable pride of night.

From lowered blinds the dark folks stare
And here the fair folk talk
Indignant that these two should dare
In union to walk.
Oblivious to look and word
They pass, and no wonder
That lightning brilliant as a sword
Should blaze the path of thunder.

Argue Birth Control Before House Today

Washington, May 19—(AP)—Arguments for birth control legislation were laid today before a committee of the House for the first time since 1873.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Margaret Sanger, the outstanding leader in the cause, a dozen speakers, doctors, clergymen, sociologists spoke before the Ways and Means committee for passage of a bill by Representative Hancock (D., N. C.) which would relax present prohibitions to permit physicians to disseminate birth control information.

This plea, though unheard before on the House side, already has been presented to the Senators. The Senate Judiciary committee was engaged today in hearing opposition to the plan.

Among the witnesses with Mrs. Sanger were Dr. W. F. Shallenberger, Atlanta, Georgia, obstetrician; Rabbi Sidney E. Goldstein of New York; Dr. Walter R. Stockes of Washington; Rev. Charles Francis Potter of New York; Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, writer and lecturer; Professor L. Foster Wood of Rochester, secretary of the Committee on Marriage and the Home of the Federal Council of Churches; Professor Robert C. Dexter of Boston, and Miss Winifred L. Chappell of New York, secretary of the Methodist Federation for Social Service.

WANTS MINISTERIAL EQUALITY WITH MEN

Atlantic City, N. J., May 19—(AP)—Ministerial equality with men is a goal which women still have to attain in the Methodist Episcopal church.

They marshaled their arguments for equal franchise in the ministry before the general conference last night, and there were time during the two hours and a half debate which followed when it seemed as if their crusade would be successful.

The final vote, however, vetoed the amendment which would allow women, married or single, to share the same status of ordained ministers and to become members of the various annual conferences which compose the church. The vote was 417 to 331, with a number of women voting against equal rights.

The women retain their present status in Methodism. They can be admitted to "local orders" under which they are allowed to preach, and to administer baptism, marriage, and the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. But they are still "supply" or substitute preachers and they cannot receive an appointment to a pastorate.

Soft Mauve Shades White, and Black Correct for Mourning

By JOAN SAVOY
NEA Service Writer
What is correct mourning?

That is a question many women ask for now that it is not considered correct to go into such heavy mourning that your very clothes acquaint the world with your loss, women want to know just what they can wear that is in good taste.

All black, black and white, all white and certain soft shades of mauve are all in the category of correct mourning.

Most houses today will make up many of their new models in materials and colors to suit one who is bereaved.

The main thing about mourning clothes is that they have a quiet, retiring quality to them. Nothing that is startling or obtrusive really is good. Most of the blacks used are more or less dull-surfaced materials.

Avoid Glittering Ornaments
Any becoming black costume with lightening touches is a good choice. Do not wear colored beads or flowers or anything that is glittering or shiny. No jewelry is better than a poor choice.

For an afternoon and dinner costume, one utterly correct and most tasteful costume is made of black georgette and white, with alternate tucks in the georgette and double narrow bands of white.

It really is a little sad with the blouse of white georgette made with a soft, cowl collar, nicely draped, and the short little jacket topping it. The jacket has three-quarter sleeves, and black suede gloves, matching the pumps and purse, are correct accessories.

The hat is a modish little brimmed one with a chic, dull look to it, for it is made of black knobby crocheted straw. It has a black band that has only a flat little bow over the right eye.

Says Average Citizen Dull In Understanding Government

Chicago, May 19—(AP)—Modern life, says President Harry Woodburn Chase of the University of Illinois, has dulled the average citizen's understanding of governments in the modern social order.

Americans, he told the Illinois Federations of Women's clubs last night, are no longer as close to the sources of opinion on national questions as they were in the days when the nation was smaller and men gathered in town councils and took interest in local and national government.

As a result, he declared, the average citizen today has hazy ideas about his government, or perhaps none at all, and fails completely to understand the complicated development of the social order.

Earlier in the day the delegates to the federation's annual convention heard its motion picture committee chairman, Mrs. Richard M. McClure assert "that children aren't attending the movies like they used to."

Adults are prevalent in audiences nowadays, she said, because children "do not like dialogue. They like action pictures and talking slows up the action. Further, they cannot comprehend the subtleties of a sophisticated plot and are bored."

The shadow of a Frankenstein that will destroy the future generation.

A BOLD PLAN.

Edward A. Filene's remarks about automobile, railroads and the business depression before the New York Board of Trade the other day had at least the merit of tackling the back-to-prosperity problem from a refreshingly new angle.

Mr. Filene, as you may remember, proposed that the railroads be stimulated, "not by crushing their competitors but by giving them competitors worthy of their steel." Instead of trying to divert business back to the railroads by thinking up new restrictions for other forms of transportation, he would throw the doors wide open, build a vast network of super highways all over the country, make motor transportation cheaper and faster than ever before and challenge the railroads to stand the gaff.

By so doing, he believes, prosperity would be helped in several ways. Transportation would be made cheaper, the huge expenditures necessary to build the new highways would stimulate business, and the existence of the roadways, once they were completed, would create vast new markets for the automobile manufacturers.

Here is a plan that will undoubtedly call forth loud cries of alarm from the railroad men. They can hardly be expected to take kindly to Mr. Filene's assertion that, in the end, the railroads themselves would be benefited by the scheme; their reply probably will be that long before that stage could be reached most of the railroads would be bankrupt.

But the plan deserves attention, if for no other reason than that it is a bold one. Boldness, after all, is one trait that has not been very much in evidence since the depression began. Most of the people who have suggested ways of getting back to prosperity have a great fondness for playing it safe. The idea seems to be that we must, at all costs, avoid any idea that hasn't been hashed over a hundred times before.

It may be that, in the long run, nothing but some bold, far-reaching plan will save us. This particular scheme may not be the one we need, but at least there is nothing timid about it.

FEWER NEW YORK VISITORS.

The New York State Transit Commission the other day presented a set of figures dealing with travel to and from New York City during the year 1931, and showed very clearly just why and how the depression is hitting the metropolis so severely.

The number of out-of-town visitors to New York during the year was more than 5,500,000 below the number for 1930. This works out to a decrease of around 18,000 a day—a number sufficient to fill 18 1000-room hotels to capacity.

Mull over those figures for a minute and you can see what they mean to the trade of the metropolis. They mean a severe blow to hotel and restaurant men, a sharp decline in the business done by the theater-owners; a similar decline in the business done by shop-owners—and last but not least, a great falling-off in the passenger revenues of the railroads.

THE GLACIERS AGAIN?

Within 2000 years there will be a return of the great glaciers, says Dr. O. Gunnar Erdman of the University of Stockholm. The climate of northern Europe and America has been growing steadily colder for more than a thousand years; deciduous trees such as the beech and the oak have been steadily moving southward, as if to get away from glacial advance that they clearly foresaw.

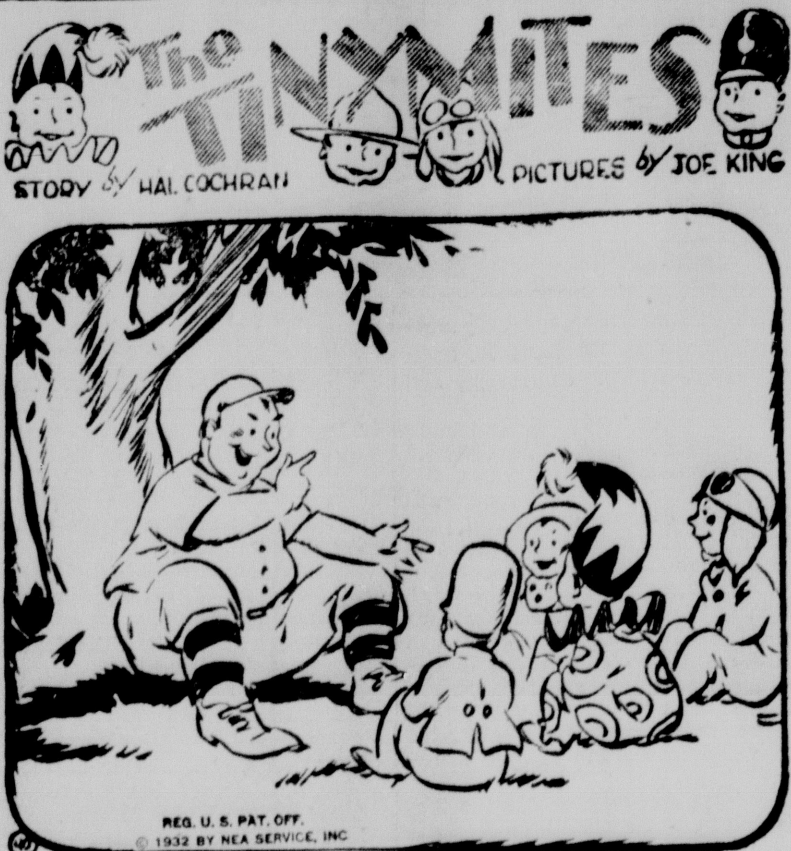

Of course, as far as any of us are concerned, a catastrophe 2000 years away might as well be entirely non-existent; but the idea is enough, just the same, to give an imaginative man the creeps. The greater part of North America, for instance, down to about the latitude of the Ohio river, was once covered with hundreds of feet of ice. Is that to happen again? If so, what sort of tack is the human race to follow thereafter?

I am firmly convinced that from the day all political debts are canceled the economic existence of everyone everywhere, whether employer or employee, will be improved.—Chancellor Brüning of Germany.

The decision to evacuate Shanghai is due to the Japanese government's desire to conform to world opinion and to prove that Japan had no ulterior or territorial motives in sending troops there.—Spokesman for the Japanese government, Tokio.

It is inconceivable that the legislature intended the prohibition law to apply to the possession of a teaspoonful of whisky when that quantity could not in any manner affect the morals, health or well-being of any person.—From an opinion by the Alabama Court of Appeals.

I am beginning to think that when Lewis Carroll described the "tumble down the rabbit hole" he visualized in a prophetic manner going down the Empire State building.—Mrs. Reginald Liddell Hargreaves, "Alice" of "Alice in Wonderland."

The toy truck soon was filled up high and Duncy shouted, "Gee, but I would like to join that flock of toys and take a nice long ride. In fact I have a hunch I'll see if there is room enough for me. If I could find a corner in the truck that's where I'd hide."

The play man then said, "Listen, son! No doubt that would be lots of fun, but my advice is that you stay right with the Tynmites. They shot'sly will be leaving me and lots of new things they will see. I'm sure that you'd regret it, if you missed some thrilling sights."

Wes Duncy scratched his head and smiled. "I'll bet you're kind to every child," said he. "You've given good advice. I'll stay right with the bunch."

"You mustn't mind the things I say. My mind works in a funny way and often, as the others know, I get a crazy hunch."

The play man then said, "Come with me and all sit down by yonder tree. I'll tell you all about the way to have the finest fun."

They followed him till he sat down and then they gladly gathered 'round. 'Twas in a very shady spot, out of the burning sun.

"If little lads would mix their play with lots of sleep, by night and day, they'd grow up to be very strong," the old play man explained.

"If you are going to exercise, 'tis best that you full realize that you must also rest a lot. 'Tis thus that strength is gained."

"You see, your muscles get tired out when you are dashing 'round about. Then, when you lie down, they relax and that is good for you."

He talked and talked for quite a while. The Tynmites made him smile. Soon Scouty said, "That's fine advice and that's just what we'll do."

GERMANS BOMB LONDON

On May 19, 1918, London was the victim of another air raid. Under cover of night, numerous German bombers flew over the city and released thousands of tons of explosives, killing 44 and injuring 179 persons. The Germans escaped with a loss of only five planes.

One of America's greatest war aces, Major Raoul Lufbery, met his death while engaging an enemy plane above the German lines near Toul. The plane which downed him was later destroyed by a French pilot.

AIR PATHS
of GLORY

THE CONTRASTING TRIO

By DEXTER TEED
NEA Service Writer

Flyers around German airports see him now frequently. He comes roaring over in a big plane, out of the night, through the storm or from clear skies. But he always arrives. They can depend on him. He is a dependable man, a solid man, with his blocky body, his round Teutonic face, and his twinkling eyes. Almost always there's a humorous smile playing around his mouth.

Once Captain Herman Koehl flew to fame over the Atlantic. Now he flies the mail.

Huenefeld is Gone

Out from Berlin is a grave. In it rests Baron Gunther von Huenefeld, who had been a jolly companion of Captain Herman and Col. James Fitzmaurice, on that Atlantic flight. Unlike many aviators, he died of natural causes, in bed. He is a dead hero and Captain Koehl cherishes his memory. Sometimes he goes out to his grave.

For Koehl there is nobody to take the baron's place. That monocled eye of his and somewhat boyish grin are not to be forgotten. They were cheering help that April 12, 1928, when the big plane "Bremen" took off for the United States.

That was a contrasting trio in that plane: von Huenefeld, an aristocrat; Fitzmaurice, an Irish soldier; Koehl, a middle class German. They were attempting something that had never been accomplished before—an east-west crossing.

Just Made It

There was bad weather with storms and wind. They fought along, cheered by the baron's wit, Fitzmaurice's enthusiasm and Koehl's reliability. The Junkers' motor operated perfectly and America awaited them. But when a day and a half had passed and nothing had been seen of the plane, many thought three more lives were lost.

It was not so. The "Bremen" battled against head winds for more than a day and came down, with gasoline nearly gone, on lone some Greenley Island, off Labrador. It was somewhat of a crackup but the three were safe and they had crossed from east to west.

When the world heard about them, three days after the start, cheers were unrestrained. The celebration that followed in New York was shadowed with tragedy when gallant Floyd Bennett, who had flown to their relief, died of pneumonia contracted on the long flight.

Back in Germany, they were the greatest heroes since the war. Koehl was acclaimed, with the others, but he was gradually forgotten by the public and now—he flies the mail for a living.

The baron kept his interest in aviation, and when he died the whole German nation grieved. They liked, yes loved, the baron.

The destiny of Fitzmaurice has kept him in the United States most of the time. He was an official of an airplane company here. He was director of a flying field named for him at Massapequa Park, L. I., and in 1929 he planned a trans-Atlantic flight to demonstrate the availability of the

as a mail carrier. The proposed flight was never made.

Last winter, still in New York, he predicted that the time will come when planes will fly to Europe and back in 24 hours. And so, too, he has been back to Ireland to dabble in politics, with that Irish vigor of his.

Contact with many countries and cities have made well-groomed Fitzmaurice a cosmopolite; a suave man, since the days he flew the Atlantic.

Way "Down Under" a pleasant rugged man hops off to London or Cape Town with equal nonchalance. He made one of the greatest flights, but do you recall his name? See tomorrow's Evening Telegraph for "AIR PATHS OF GLORY."

DO YOU INHALE?

...wonder why
cigarette advertising generally avoids this question?

ONE of the mysteries in cigarette advertising has been the apparent fear of the word "inhale." It seems rather foolish—for everybody inhales—whether they realize it or not . . . every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

Think, then, how important it is to be certain that your cigarette smoke is pure and clean—to be sure that you don't inhale certain impurities.

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question . . . because when you smoke Luckies your delicate membranes get the protection no other cigarette affords. All other methods have been made old-fashioned by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? Of course you do! So truly this message is for you.

May 27 will close the year for the Pine Rock Woman's club which has had a most delightful program. The program of May 13, like all those preceding it was one which gave the members of the club much opportunity for thought. The address of the afternoon was given by Rev. Orville Hawkins of Illinois State Department of Public Welfare. In his talk, Rev. Hawkins congratulated the Pine Rock Woman's club upon its membership which is more than ninety per cent rural.

Mrs. Hurley, wife of Secretary Hurley of President Hoover's cabinet recently said that "No nation rises higher than its womanhood." Charles M. Schwab recently remarked "The aristocracy of today is not one of birth or wealth, but of those who do things for the welfare of their fellowmen."

There is a place for the rural woman as well as for her sister of the town.

In no group, said Rev. Watkins is the interest in the welfare for others more keen than in the live Woman's club. His talk was upon the subject of the welfare of the underprivileged, mentally, physically handicapped and suffering from the delinquency of those who should have his interests at heart.

Comparing statistics of 1913 with those of 1929, Rev. Watkins quoted data which showed that while the population of our country increased 25 in those years, crime increased while the breaking of the 18th Amendment and highway traffic violations contribute some what to this increase, they cannot be credited with the major share of it. Much of the crime of today is committed by the youth of today. Good roads and automobiles have given the young people of today many more social contacts than those enjoyed by their fathers. Some of these have been constructive; others have not. Presenting the young of today are thrown into close personal contact with detrimental characters, having a glamor for the young which it is difficult to resist.

Youth of today has been surrounded with modern inventions which make life easier, more interesting. Their leisure time has been increased but their moral training has not kept pace with the increase in moral fiber deterioration which is so prevalent. Churches of today are not meeting the demand which the young people of today are making. It is rather serving the older generation better than the young. More and more the schools of our country are being called upon to shoulder the burdens which should be those of the church and the home.

A check up was recently made of 600 boys enrolled in the St. Charles school of boys. These were boys who were in the school in 1925. 300 of these lads were from downstate and 300 from Cook county. 100 per cent of the boys were located. From this number 250 from Cook county and 250 from downstate the following records were discovered:

Of the 250 from downstate 100 were living normal, useful lives and 150 were either electrocuted, hanged, imprisoned or in insane asylums. Of the 250 from Cook county but 25 had made good while 225 were imprisoned or otherwise a state charge. This is conclusive proof that such institutions, despite the huge sums of money spent upon them, are failing far short of accomplishing what should be done for such boys.

Judge Knox of DuPage county reports that in the past 16 years he has sent but one boy to the St. Charles school for boys because he feels that it is not the place for many boys who have made a misstep.

In visiting such institutions, one would find as pleasing types of American manhood, physically, as any high school presents. Permitted to sit in with the board of the Pontiac reform school, Rev. Hawkins, listened to the recital of one lad who had served 11 months at Pontiac and was then eligible to parole. The boy under 16 told his story. His parents separated and he was allowed to shift for himself. Like all normal healthy boys, his first thought was to start out to go somewhere, no where in particular, but just to keep moving. He headed south, and soon met with another boy in the same pursuit, just going somewhere. Weary, hungry, footsore, they came to an automobile along the way, and with no second thought, got into it and drove off. Captured a short distance away, they were sentenced to Pontiac, where in the words of Dr. Ryan, with the brand of Cain, they emerged later with bitter hostile feelings toward society which had placed them in the institution, determined to "get even" and schooled in the finer tactics of crime, having associated with such types for a year. Rodney Brandon states that 60 per cent of these younger criminals are from broken homes or they are orphaned. In his book "About Ourselves" H. A. Overstreet, Professor of Department of Philosophy of the city of New York quotes D'Albe saying "Children feed on love as they do on food. Starved for love and an understanding heart, these boys whose mistakes are not so serious, commit crimes. Did some one have the love and forbearance to take them into their homes and help them over this distressing period, they might easily become a credit to our country were as in many instances they are a menace and soon a public charge. Mentally and morally bruised, spiritually almost dead, they need kindness and understanding rather than punishment which often times hardens and brutalizes the boys. Rev. Hawkins did not advocate coddling, but in so many instances these lads are as worthy and as capable as those boys of our own homes who if thrown out upon the world, would probably give on great thought to the mistake which they take than these unloved, uncared for boys in these trying adolescent years of their life.

TURTLE HEAD

STRANGLED HEN

Madison, Va. —Mrs. H. B. Pray tells a strange story of how she lost one of her pet hens recently. The head of a turtle, its mouth open, was thrown into the chicken yard. The hen began pecking at it to see if it was good to eat. The turtle head grabbed the chicken in a death-like grip and strangled her.

"A Salesman Who Made The Drug Store A Palace," Ex-Dixonite

"Sales Management" Has Article On C. R. Walgreen

"Sales Management" a weekly magazine for marketing executives in a recent issue, published a very interesting interview with Charles R. Walgreen of Dixon and Chicago by Lester B. Colby.

Mr. Walgreen, though born in Illinois, is of Swedish descent. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walgreen, lived in Dixon for many years. His mother, formerly Miss Olsen, was a descendant of the famous Bernadotte family whose home was near Stockholm, Sweden.

Mr. Colby, himself a famous writer, shows keen ability as a character reader when he describes this clear thinking, kindly, great minded, strong character son of a sturdy, dependable and admirable race as "The Gentle Philosopher." Read how he speaks of "A Salesman Who Made The Drug Store A Palace."

It was only after long diplomatic persuasion that I convinced the gentle Philosopher of Bowen Avenue that he ought to sit for this word portrait. I found him somewhat opposed to such things.

"He is never interviewed," his secretary had told me firmly on my several importunings. But persistence, like youth, must be served.

Philosophers and sages are supposed to live in tubs, to search for honest men with lanterns, and to be rather outlandish and eccentric persons. But the Philosopher of Bowen Avenue is different.

He is a successful philosopher. He dances joyously from wave to wave in his own giant amphibian, takes immeasurable delight in the good game of golf, plays pool, billiards and chess, loves the allure of chance at cards, thinks college boys make first-class business material, has a fondness for reading good books in bed, knows hundreds of stars in the heavens by their names and admits that he makes the best decisions of his day while shaving.

He places his associates in trade and commerce above the social elite and considers his business suit of more importance than his soap-and-fish.

His first heroes are scientists who put their minds to worthwhile research and, he whispered with a smile, men who write lasting works. Most successful business men, he says, are children of chance. But, he adds, they must be busy children.

The gentle Philosopher of Bowen Avenue, should you care to sit further with me, is Charles R. Walgreen, whose name is written large in neon lights. He heads the Walgreen chain of 465 drug stores.

It has been said of him.

That he found drug store windows largely empty except for garish globes of gaudy liquids and transformed them into joyous displays filled with many things.

That he found drug stores dingy places in a drab era of unwashed golden oak, with sad and little-washed wooden floors, and put tile and mirrors and plate glass in them.

That he has filled the hearts of millions of children with happiness by making toys an all-year commodity rather than a seasonal luxury.

That he changed the noonday habits of the working girls of the nation by transforming the ancient and stained soda fountain into a bright and popular luncheon place.

That he, more than any other one man, has modernized the drug stores of the nation by the example he has set in business practice.

That he has evolved the rather startling heresy that a good executive should not stick too tightly to his desk, as he does some of his worst thinking there.

I had heard a pleasurable story about Mr. Walgreen's baptism in the business fire of Chicago. It went like this:

Years piled on years ago, when he chose to depart from his native town of Dixon, Illinois, and cleave his fortune amid the granite of the city, he caught an early train. On the way in he bought a newspaper and eagerly scanned the Help Wanted ads.

CHAS. R. WALGREEN

Seeing that a drug store across from the station of arrival desired a clerk, he hopped from the train and grabbed the job. After having he excused himself for breakfast of doughnuts and coffee.

I asked confirmation.

"The story's all right," he said. "I had that job before I had been in Chicago five minutes. It's correct except—I don't seem to recall going out for the breakfast."

Knowing Mr. Walgreen to be a philosopher I asked him, of course, about his philosophy of business.

"My philosophy," he ventured, "is that much of the philosophy of business isn't much good. I think that the average business man is rather over-stuffed with theory and blue-prints; his mind likely to be so bound up with the red-tape and rules of beliefs that it is not wholly free to function."

"You can read tons of convincing and studious essays by experts which tell you this and that, and that the customer will always turn to the right and follow a beaten path, and buy in certain spots in a store. I don't take much stock in it all."

"You can even read that one of the strengths of the chain store is that fixed laws can be laid down, patterns made for merchandising display and for methods and practice. I don't take much stock in that either. I believe that every store is an individual problem."

The manager of every Walgreen store must be capable of understanding his special situations. Stores are divided into districts, perhaps fifteen stores to the district. Over these is a district manager. He must study these stores, not as a group, but as individual stores.

"Stocks highly suitable for one store may not be suited to another store in the same district but in a different environment. We find these things out, not by theory but by observation and experience."

So, you see, the store manager is really an important man.

"This, too, I know and it is no theory—"

"A merchant can give good values, make money and retain good will. Volume with profit, but never a large profit, is my aim. Our business is built on a multitude of small transactions."

"Atmosphere in a store is one of the things I value most of all. The personnel of a store is tremendously important. We desire no 'smart' selling. Only one kind of salesman can stand up under the gunfire of continuous transactions and succeed—the honest salesman."

"A man who studies and plans and plots and schemes to please the public on a so-called scientific basis is not, to my mind, the best sort of salesman I'll take 'em natural. The man I like best is the man who is just himself, whose smile is spontaneous and unfurled. We mustn't be too stiff-necked about our salesmanship."

"For us to send a blanket order out regulating our conduct or practice, or even our stocks on a wholesale basis, would be just as foolish as for a physician to rise in the morning and say, 'Here is a prescription. Give it to all my patients today.'"

"No man can run a business by correspondence. Any chain organization can break itself if it tries."

"I do not believe very deeply in the superior man. I think that mentality is fairly well distributed. I know we have department heads who can do their work better than I could do it. It is possible I can do my work better than they, but if so, it is because I have had more and longer experience in my special tasks."

I asked Mr. Walgreen if he subscribed to that ancient saw which lays down that salesmen are born and not made.

"Some men have a special aptitude for selling," he replied, "but all men can learn. It is desire rather than genius."

"I do not like subtlety in salesmanship. In these recent years, there has developed a cult of salesmanship much of which is false. In our organization we do not care for high-powered selling."

"A salesman must be persistent, but by that I mean persistent in offering goods to many people; not persistent in trying to make the one customer buy. He can only offer and then let the customer judge. I will illustrate—"

"All drug stores for many years have handled a commonplace pill. Practice since my earliest memory was to sell them in packages, a dozen pills for ten cents. We began to put them up in lots of 100—for nineteen cents. When people asked for these pills our men were instructed to do this and nothing more."

"Merely to hold up the package of 100 and say, 'We can sell you this for nineteen cents.'"

"The reason for the suggestion was obvious. The reason for any suggestion ought always to be obvious or there should be no suggestion. The suggestion must be to the advantage of the customer—not just to make a sale."

"Nothing like that happened. I clerked for three years in that drug store right over there on the corner. (Pointing to his first store not a hundred yards from his office building) I bought the store. Things progressed. I opened a second store. From then on things just happened."

"It is my thought that there are no fixed rules for business success. Most of us who find ourselves at the head of some prominent business have only evolved out of circumstance. I was not possessed with a vision that permitted me to foresee the developments that followed. It just happened. I don't know why. Perhaps this will make my thoughts clearer—"

"Picture life as a broad, deep, flowing river, and we humans as blocks of wood of equal size, shape and weight. Let us say that in places in this river are eddies, whirlpools and rapids. Some of us reach the ocean; others do not. Who would say that the destiny of any one block was under its control. This is my point."

"Even though I may be fitted for my task there are many others in my own line who, had Fate so willed, might be doing the work that is mine as well or better than I."

"On the other hand one must admit that there are many who, because of their capacity for work and natural leadership, find themselves directing important affairs of the world. I would not detract from the credit due them."

"Success should not be measured in terms of dollars; nor should it be reckoned by prominence. There are hundreds of thousands of truly successful persons who have never received prominence; neither do they seek it. A reasonable amount of money is only one factor in the creation of happiness. Success to me means doing the things I like to do; the things that seem important to me."

"If you would be successful be a worker. Think while you work. Opportunity does not present herself to idlers. She keeps company with the busy. She must first be recognized, then embraced. After having embraced opportunity be alert and persistent. The result will be success."

"Business and life are much like a golf game. As each man plays he must take each shot as he finds it and shoot from there to the best of his ability. One cannot plan every shot before he starts his play, because he can never know what sort of lie he will get."

"But this, get this, it's important—"

"We are hearing a great deal about overproduction. There is, and can be, no overproduction of buying desire. What we face is an underproduction of buying power."

"As a nation we cannot go back to old standards. The so-called good old-fashioned things were not good at all. We've had our taste of something infinitely better."

"Prosperity can be built—like a business. Prosperity can be laid up, rock by rock, like a wall. What we seem to lack right now is the great mind needed to organize and carry through the work. Perhaps we will find that mind."

"And of prosperity, here is something that may be hard to make the public believe—"

"I want to see the independent drug store owner prosper. I believe there is place for us all. I do not think that the chains can prosper unless the independents do."

My appointment with Mr. Walgreen was arranged to start his business day—at 10:00 in the morning. At least, I thought it started it. I was there at the appointed moment. He came in shortly afterward. We set about our business. We talked for three hours.

None of his business routine was transacted in that time. We were interrupted not at all. That, I figured, was organization—for the man must have a multitude of burdens upon him. But I understood, finally, as he dropped brief and pithy aphorisms:

"A good executive doesn't need to punch a clock."

"Physical presence is not always necessary."

"My working day begins when I start to lather my face."

"A man whose heart is in his work can get good thoughts at a ball game."

"The successful man is an approachable man."

"There are few really super business men (else the supermen would not stand out so brightly).

"There are fewer super business women or the few we know would not scintillate as they do."

"The truly great man is the research scientist, for even after he tells us what he has found the most of us do not have minds that can comprehend it."

"An idea is of no value unless it is developed."

"I've long respected Coolidge; he knew when not to talk and what he should not say."

"Keeping one's own counsel is a gift."

He smiled a wry smile at this. He said:

"I find myself chattering quite a bit today. It is unusual. I wonder why?"

It seems to me that in these revelations of his mental workings Charles R. Walgreen has indicated why all these years he has remained the gentle Philosopher of Bowen Avenue and has withstood the lure of the Loop, which has made many men the modulators of toil and tumult amid the tom-tomming of traffic.

He thinks it foolish to wear out ones life in heat and poise and strife. He loves to fly away to his native home in Dixon, where he has pool tables in a glory-barn with a broad fireplace in it.

And now—

If you ever get to talking with Mr. Walgreen, and want to make him happy, I will tell you how. He said to me:

"If anyone ever tells me that he likes to trade in our stores, I ask him why."

"If he hesitates and says: 'I do not know why—but I do,' I consider that a very compliment. It makes me glad."

Picking The Presidents Of Nation, 1856-1932

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
Washington —(AP)— Thirty-six years have passed since a young man in a black cutaway coat with a mop of hair hanging over his collar stood in a stuffy little $2 room in a farmers' hotel in Chicago and shook hands with a multitude of "free silver" enthusiasts.

That silver issue carried that young man — William Jennings Bryan — to political fame and almost to the presidency.

Next month in Chicago the two parties in convention may recall Bryan's famous words — words that made 20,000 convention listeners back in 1896 sit "spellbound as the last period fell from his lips: 'You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns; you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold.'"

Bryan vs. McKinley
Bryan was nominated by the Democrats and the Republicans under the expert guidance of Mark Hanna, nominated William McKinley on a gold standard plank. McKinley won easily in the electoral vote but the popular vote was close.

The "great commoner" lambasting "corporate greed" before large audiences, hung up a record of 24 speeches in 24 hours. Even the less strenuous McKinley, inaugurating the "front porch" campaign style, made a total of 214 speeches. His high mark for a day was 21.

Four years before Bryan entered so strongly into the national political picture, "Honest Grover" Cleveland had emerged from retirement to reenter the White House. Cleveland had been defeated in 1888 by Benjamin Harrison, only to stage a successful comeback in the 1892 campaign.

The tariff issue stood out in 1892, and the Democratic and Republican platforms of this year may carry tariff planks similar to those that made "the great issue" then.

Cleveland standing on the Democratic platform, pledging a reduction of the high tariffs enacted during Harrison's term, defeated Harrison, who sought reelection as an advocate of protection.

Cleveland found himself in the famous depression of 1893, the business slump being the main part of the news of the time. Cleveland stood for gold, but the Democrats decided to back Bryan and silver in the 1896 campaign. McKinley, the Republican's choice was known as the "Napoleon of Tariff," and he supported the gold standard.

Leader of the pre-convention fight for McKinley in Illinois was none other than Charles Gates Eganston, who was later to be Davies, young business man, the "Hell and Mary" director of budget, vice president of the United States and ambassador to the Court of St. James.

Samuel Gompers was just beginning to hit his stride as an organizer of labor, and lady bicyclists had tool kits mounted in silver.

Bicycles in Parades
McKinley and Bryan bicyclists carried flambeaus and red, white and blue lights in night parades, trolley cars were embellished for pageant purposes.

In many staunch republican households the popular inscription "There is no place like home" was supplanted by "Patriotism, Protection and Prosperity." When Bryan spoke at Martinsburg, W. Va., he was escorted by a cavalcade of southern horsemen, who gave the "rebel yell."

McKinley wearing high silk hat and frock coat, sat in a rocking chair on his porch the day after election and "smiled graciously at the plaudits of his supporters." Frightened by the noise made by the celebrants, the sedate horse that drew the McKinley carriage ran away.

Bryan, seeming little fatigued by his strenuous campaign, said: "The fight had just begun."

Did you ever stop to think
EDSON WAITE
Shawnee, Okla.

THAT you should keep your money at home by spending it at home. The financial assets of a city do much to measure its prosperity. You should increase these assets so prosperity can increase. You decrease them by spending money elsewhere.

When citizens take a pledge of loyalty to the home city and stay with it, the whole city prospers.

By the force of will, the study of the situation, and the application of common sense, most cities determine the policy of the home city. Then with hard work, enthusiasm and persistence, they carry out that policy to a successful conclusion. The policy of buying at home is a policy that makes good cities better.

Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the possibilities of getting business for the home city.

The city or community that grasps and utilizes the knowledge of what buying at home means finds local business prospering and new enterprises seeking locations.

When you buy merchandise from those who advertise in local papers you are assured of protection, service, and promises lived up to.

When you buy away from home and wake up to the fact that the goods you bought are not what you thought they were, don't kick; you are just out of luck.

IN LOCAL PAPERS YOU CAN ALWAYS FIND ASTONISHING VALUES ADVERTISED.

Curious Crowds Overrun Spot Where Lindbergh Case Had Tragic End

Two days after the Lindbergh baby's body had been found the scene of the tragic discovery took on the atmosphere of a street fair, as this picture reveals. While hundreds of tourist cars jammed the ordinarily stands sprang up on the spot and hawkers mingled with the crowds. The arrow at the left point to peanut and popcorn "concessions"; that at the right, to a hastily erected refreshment tent.

Past Supreme Moose Dictator Here Friday Eve

J. WILLIS PIERSON

That the proper care and education of dependent children is the most important factor in the reduction of delinquency and crime is practically an axiom of sociology. The work of the Loyal Order of Moose is therefore of intense interest to Judge J. Willis Pierson, who, after some years in the criminal courts of Texas, devotes his time to the activities of the order. Judge Pierson is a Past Supreme Dictator, Loyal Order of Moose, and is Supervisor of the Organization Department for the states of Illinois, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri.

J. Willis Pierson is a native of Texas. He began his public career at twenty-one, when he was elected State's Attorney for Rains County, Texas. Later he became judge of the probate court, and finally judge of the criminal court of Dallas. In this capacity he had ample opportunity for the study of the criminal against society, whose background almost invariably was shown to be that of a neglected, possibly parentless, child left to defend for himself at an early age.

The aims of the Moose toward the amelioration of the lot of dependent children attracted Judge Pierson, and in 1911 he joined the order. Bringing the enthusiasm which characterized him in his profession, he was shortly elected to the Supreme Council. In 1926 he became Supreme Prelate, Supreme Vice Dictator in 1921—and the following year was appointed Supreme Dictator. While in this, the highest elective office in the Loyal Order of Moose—Judge Pierson reached a standard that has seldom been achieved. As Supreme Dictator he was constantly on the road and his success as a speaker is a matter of history. Wherever he was booked to appear his reputation as an orator brought out vast crowds. Few men of his generation can carry an audience to such heights of enthusiasm as can this great emotional speaker. No man in the Moose fraternity can excel him in presenting the gospel of the Moose. This was firmly established by the greatly increased membership in the lodge during Judge Pierson's term of office.

At the conclusion of his active term of office, his ability as a speaker was further recognized. The Director General's request that he devote his entire time to spreading the gospel of the Moose. In 1923 Judge Pierson took over the midwest office of the Organization Department with headquarters at Mooseheart, the Child City maintained by the Loyal Order of Moose for the care and education of the children of deceased members.

Past Supreme Dictator Pierson will be the speaker at the open house meeting of Dixon Lodge L. O. O. Moose Friday evening, to which the public is invited. Mooseheart children, who are frequently heard over station WJJD will also be present and present an musical program.

ARTERIOSCLEROSIS

Arteriosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries, is a disease condition recognized for many centuries.

Yet, despite a great deal of study there is at yet little positive information on the mechanisms involved in its development.

In arteriosclerosis of the living cells (unstriated muscle cells and other cellular elements that make up the arterial wall) undergo degeneration and are displayed by deposits of calcium salts.

This process of deposition of calcium in the place of destroyed living cells is not uncommon.

It is found, for example, in tuberculosis, in cyst formations, and in other processes involving the destruction of tissue.

Professor Plesch of the University of Berlin argues that the deposition of calcium in the arteries is a defensive measure, and follows an injury suffered by the blood vessels.

The first injury he gives the generic name of atony, by which he means that due to excessive strains imposed upon the arteries either by great physical effort or by intoxication by poisons, or as a result of systemic disease conditions, the muscle cells have lost their normal tone or strength and have become atonic.

The deposit of calcium, he maintains, really strengthens the walls of excessively dilated blood vessels at points of greatest strain.

Professor Plesch says that "every influence that is capable of weakening the organism to such an extent as to produce a general atony (this we may understand in popular language as general weakness) can also without hesitation be held responsible for arterial atony and (subsequently) for calcification."

He names certain of the causes of general atony as being acute or chronic infectious diseases, intoxications of any description, disturbances in the glands of internal secretion, nervous influences, the abuse of alcohol and disorders of metabolism, such as diabetes, gout and excessive obesity.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington — The gentleman from New Jersey, the first of her sex to become chairman of a major congressional committee, is fast proving to her colleagues that she can tilt with the best of them on the floor.

Mrs. Mary Norton, chairman of the important house committee on the District of Columbia and referred to in the capital as the "mayor" of Washington is no novice in politics. "On the hill" veterans will tell you that the black-haired, flashing-eyed Mrs. Norton plays at politics just like a man. She neither asks nor gives quarter.

She likes to use the time honored words and phrases of the politician whether she is addressing a polite society of women or making an old-fashioned stump speech.

Shouted Down

Mrs. Norton's first appearance before the house in the role of a committee chairman was not particularly auspicious. She found herself a victim of parliamentary maneuvering, loud shouting and other things that sat her down in rather harsh fashion.

Predictions were made at the time that a woman just wasn't capable of weathering the rough and tumble situations which a committee chairman trying to jam a bill through must undergo.

Whether the gentleman from New Jersey heard these predictions is not a matter of record. But judging from the manner in which she has conducted her subsequent appearances on the floor, something of this nature must have been brought to her attention.

She took her stand on the floor the other day, for example, to clear the calendar of some legislation affecting the District of Columbia. Tom Blanton of Texas, one of the house's hardest hitters in debate, put himself in her way to oppose some of the bills.

She Tells Blanton

Blanton, an expert at scooting around the rules to get time to talk, succeeded in getting the floor for a whole hour at one time. He proceeded to talk about almost everything but District legislation.

There was nothing Mrs. Norton could do but register impatience and disgust at Blanton's tactics. Her anger increased with each minute. Finally, she arose and shot at him:

"Does the gentleman from Texas think that he is doing an honest day's work?"

Blanton countered with some remark, and she blazed out again: "Well, you're not fair with our committee!"

CAMERA DOESN'T LIE

Indianapolis, Ind. — Municipal Judge Clifton Cameron was confronted with some evidence that couldn't lie if it wanted to. Mrs. Eloise Walton was the one who produced it. She was one of 12 persons arrested and hauled into court for disregarding a traffic stop sign. When asked if she pleaded guilty, she said no. "And why?" asked the prosecutor. "Because of these," she replied—and duced two photos which showed that the sign was so bent and twisted as to be illegible. She and the other defendants were freed.

CUBS, YANKEES BENEFACTORS IN FIRST MEETINGS

Were Only Teams Showing Profit In Inter-sectional Games

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Returns from the year's first inter-sectional strife were at hand today, and the only outstanding beneficiaries of the movement appeared to be the Chicago Cubs in the National League, the New York Yankees in the American.

By sweeping all nine engagements with the invaders from the west, the Yankees had passed Washington and are in first place. The Cubs, winning eight of twelve from the National League's eastern delegates, likewise entrenched themselves at the top.

Cincinnati's Reds, with nine wins and five losses at home, and the Philadelphia Athletics, with seven victories against four defeats, were the only other teams to show a substantial profit.

Washington failed to fatten its standing at the expense of the visiting western clubs. Losing their last four straight to St. Louis, the Senators wound up with an even break in ten games and a game and a half out of first place as they faced the Yankees in a doubleheader at the Stadium today.

Yankees Set Record
The Yankees terminated their remarkable streak by losing out Cleveland, 3 to 2, on the strength of Babe Ruth's smash into the bleachers in the tenth inning. In so doing, they became the first team in American League history to capture 15 straight games at home.

Washington bowed to the Browns, 11 to 7, in a slugfest that produced 33 hits and used up four Washington pitchers.

Lefty Grove's pitching and home runs by Fox, Dykes and Simmons featured the Athletics' parting lick at Detroit and the score was 8 to 2.

Smead Jolley's hitting helped the Boston Red Sox break a six-game losing streak at Chicago's expense, 13 to 10.

National League
Bill Clark, Brooklyn southpaw, checked in with the day's best performance in the National League when he beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4 to 2, on four hits. Lefty O'Doul smashed a triple, a double and a single for Max Carey's crew.

A big seventh inning in which Ed St. Johnson from the peak gave them scored seven runs and knocked the New York Giants a 9 to 3 victory over the Cincinnati team. Bill Terry topped off the seventh inning uprising with his ninth home run of the season.

Charles Grimm continued his batting rampage as the Cubs took their final from the Phillies, 6 to 4. Three singles ran the veteran first sacker's record to nine hits in the last three games. Chuck Klein gave the Phils three of their runs off Guy Bush when he drove one out of sight with two on base.

Led by Wally Berger who walked a double and three singles, the Boston Braves defeated St. Louis 5 to 3. The veteran Tom Marshall for Oklahoma. "My stomach became disordered several years ago, hardly able to eat anything, stomach and bowels bloated, belched up sour food after eating, my bowels were so sore. Sciatic rheumatism settled in my right leg, pains, could not get any sleep or rest and was miserable until I began taking Gly-Cas. This great herbal remedy regulated my stomach and bowels at once, am able to eat anything without any ill effects, can do a day's work now, while before I had been unable to work for two years, that awful sciatic rheumatism has left me entirely and I feel like a new man. Gly-Cas is absolutely without an equal."

SCHMELING BEGINS TRAINING BALLYHO BY SNAPPY SESSIONS WITH CAME RAMAN

Here's Herr Schmeling fishing in the brook at his training camp near Kingston, N. Y., where he is going through the training motions preparatory to a bout with Jack Sharkey scheduled for June 21. The heavyweight champion's catch was not announced, but the gate for the fight in Madison Square Garden's new bowl on Long Island has been predicted at all the way from $200,000 to $500,000, which is quite a lot of fish these days any way you take it.

Road work is part of the rigmarole necessary to the staging of a heavyweight championship fight. Here's Der Maxie on the highway near Kingston, N. Y., doing a little trotting to harden the leg muscles and improve the wind.

Little stunt pictures like these delight the heart of the toiling cameraman. Manager Joe Jacobs has a golf ball perched on the end of his cigar and Max is about to knock it off. Considering the schnozzola Mr. Jacobs affects, this is a perilous performance. Above, Max is shown writing home to the folks in Bad Saarow, Germany.

ture, and at least four stars of the conference were conceded a big chance to win the individual crown. They were Carl Dennison, Ohio State, runner-up in 1931; Charles Britz, Minnesota; Edward Lejeune, Illinois, who hasn't yet been defeated in conference play this year, and Nelson Dodge of Northwestern.

Ohio State, with Dennison as the keyman, was favored to win the team championship. First round matches were on today's schedule in both the slugs and doubles with the finals listed for Saturday.

TRACK FIELD MEET

Evansville, Ill., May 19 —(AP)—Three hundred athletes, comprising one of the strongest fields in the 32-year-old history of the Big Ten track and field meet, come to Dwyer Stadium tomorrow for the big push for team championships and Olympic consideration.

All indications point to an intense battle for the team championship since four teams are conceded a chance to win the honors. Indiana, winner of the indoor title by a fraction of a point, will be forced to show its best to stave off threats from Michigan, Ohio State and Illinois. Michigan appears to have an edge over the rest of the field in team balance but its defeat by Ohio State last week pushed the Buckeyes forward also.

Ohio State's chances rest principally in its big stars, Jack Keller and Don Bennett, hurdler and sprinter, respectively; Indiana depends on its middle distance runners, headed by the sensational Henry Brooks, mile and two-mile star; Michigan is led by Ed Russell, quarter-mile champion of 1931, while Illinois, which defeated Indiana and Purdue last week, is always regarded as a contender with Coach Harry Gill, whose teams have won eleven titles.

PRICE OF A SOUL THEME OF GRADY CANTRELL'S TALK

Twenty Five Converted At Wednesday Evening's Meeting

The Grady Cantrell tabernacle was crowded full again at last night's service. Rev. Cantrell was at his best and preached one of the most powerful sermons of the entire series. In response to the gospel invitation twenty-five people, all adults, came crowding down the aisles to make confession of their faith.

Last night's song service was one of the most inspiring. Ray Harris sang as a solo, "God's Marvelous Grace." The World Wide Guild of the First Baptist church was the only delegation in evidence, but there were car-loads from Sterling, Lanark, Princeton and other points.

A special prayer meeting is being held on the choir platform each afternoon this week at 2:30 led by one of the pastors. The service last only 30 minutes.

No collections are being taken since the expense budget was raised last Sunday evening. But a free-will offering for Rev. Cantrell will be received on Friday night and over Sunday.

Next Sunday will be the closing day of the revival. There will be three services at the tabernacle—morning at 11:15; afternoon at 2:30 and evening at 7:00.

Rev. Cantrell's text for last night's sermon was the warning of Jesus—"For what doth it profit a man, if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

Developing his theme, the evangelist drew many gripping illustrations from classical literature and from the Bible. He said in part:

"Lots of people think this text means that all very rich people are to be barred from heaven and all poor are to be saved. It does not mean that. I have known some poor people that were the vilest blasphemers. And I have known some rich men that were just as wicked. You are not good or bad according to your possessions or lack of them. Abraham was a rich man, a king in his time but God accepted him. Job was a perfect and an upright man, the record says, yet he was the Henry Ford of his day.

"God doesn't care two whoops about whether you are a millionaire or a day laborer. But he does care about your happiness and eternal well-being.

The Rich Fool
"Jesus told about a rich farmer whose lands brought forth abundantly. This man was an honest farmer. He was a hard worker and became prosperous. One year he had a bumper crop and he was entirely concerned about saving it all and preparing for future ease. Now, there was nothing wrong in having an abundance. God wants us to have and enjoy an abundance of his temporal blessings. But this man made his wealth his chief concern. He didn't have time for anything else. He had several chances to hear John the Baptist preach, but he was too busy. He heard about Jesus but was too busy to go hear him. One night he had the architect over at his great house discussing plans with him for enlarging his buildings and graineries and improving his vast estate. A knock is heard on his door. No attention paid. It comes again louder. 'Never mind,' says the rich man, 'let's get this business through.' The knock is more insistent. He launches up to see the ghastly skull and cross bones of Death entering his chamber with his fleshless fingers reaching out for him. 'No. No! Death, not you! Not now! Here I will give you all my money. Here, leave me now!' But relentless Death cannot be bribed or restrained. 'This night shall thy soul be required of thee!' Into the black abyss he tumbles without God, without Christ, without hope! So is every one that layeth up for himself riches and is not rich toward God.

"Friends, this is called the land of the living, but it is not. It is the land of the dying. We are all on the way to the grave. That is the destination of every living creature on the earth. How about it? Are you prepared for what lies beyond? Suppose you gain all the fame, possessions, money and prizes that your heart craves? What then? What will they be worth to you when the old hearse comes backing up your door? It is nearer to some one person here in this audience tonight than to any other, but we do not know who it is. It might be you, or it might be me. But our turn will come. What then?

Dives and Lazarus
"Old Dives had a swell house and a vast estate, but it profited him nothing. Lazarus, the poor beggar was laid at his door, sick, diseased and hungry. He barely existed on the crumbs that fell from the rich man's table. This old bird was too stingy even to send Lazarus up to the hospital in his Ford. When Dives died they gave him a swell funeral, the fraternities all turned out and marched in a great procession. Odd Fellows, Masons, K. P.'s, Elks, Boy Scouts and all the rest. The preacher pronounced a grand eulogy over his carcass and they put him in a great marble tomb. The newspapers all told of his great qualities and the provisions of his will giving great sums to his children and to other purposes. But what good did that do old Dives? His soul was roasting in Hell and he was crying out for Lazarus to come and dip his finger and cool tongue 'for I am in torment in this flame.'

"When Lazarus died they had a funeral, but it wasn't much. They just took his poor old broken body and dumped it into a grave in the pauper's grave-yard. But that didn't make any difference. What a scene when God's chariot came for him and angels carried him away to Abraham's bosom. He didn't have to worry any more about the sneers and ridicule of a cold-hearted world. He stuck by God in this life and God is taking care of him over yonder.

Is It Worth While?
"What shall a man give in exchange for his soul? Suppose you could gain the whole world. Is it worth while if it costs you your soul? Alexander the Great was commander of the left wing of his father's army at eighteen. At twenty four he was a king. At thirty he was a world conqueror, whose smile meant success and his frown meant failure. He died in despair before he reached his age. Hannibal, as a boy of nine swore eternal hatred toward the city of Rome. He never knew defeat till he was forty-five but died in despair, a suicide. Charlemagne and Napoleon had visions of a world empire, but perished in disillusionment. Was it worth while?

"The surprising thing is to see how cheaply some people are selling out to the Devil. They sell their soul and hope for eternal life for just a small part of the world. They barter heaven and eternal happiness for a few years' enjoyment of worldly pleasures."

Tax Problems In This State

By PROF. M. H. HUNTER
University of Illinois

25. Methods of Taxing Corporations.

The early corporations were at first looked upon as public benefactors and were granted many concessions, among them leniency in matters of taxation. When the public thought it was being exploited by the corporations, it seized upon taxation as a means of retaliation. Today corporations are generally made subjects for taxation not only by the federal government but by the states.

Most taxes upon corporations take some form of what is generally designated as a franchise tax. The franchise is some privilege not generally enjoyed and afforded if the tax be just, create some ability to pay taxes.

Many methods have been used to tax corporations. At first the general property tax was extended to this form of organization but the inability of the local assessor to handle the size and complexities of such business organizations soon indicated the inadequacy of the system. Many states, therefore have given up the general property tax as a method of taxing corporations and are using some other plan.

The plan in most general use for the taxing of corporations is to place some form of levy upon the capital stock. This, however, has not been entirely satisfactory and the question arises as to whether the tax should be upon the number of shares, upon the par value of the shares or upon their market value. There is also the problem of what provision shall be made for bonded indebtedness. In two corporations of equal size, one through stock and the one-half through bond issues.

The tendency in recent years, perhaps influenced somewhat by the federal government, has been to go to some form of an earnings tax. Because of ease of administration a gross earnings tax was at first looked upon with favor, but with the development of modern accounting systems and a clearer understanding of the concept of net earnings, a tax upon net earnings is gaining in favor, not only among administrators, but among corporations since they recognize the advantage of the levy of a tax only when net earnings appear.

As examples of states using a net earnings tax may be cited Wisconsin, where the rates range from 1 to 6 per cent, and New York where the rate is 3 per cent.

ACE "RINGS" IN HAIR
Chicago. —(Special)—By your hair can Dr. Carlton Hood, of the scientific crime detection laboratory of Northwestern University, tell your age. He plucks a hair from your head, magnifies it 1046 times, and then studies growth rings which run around the hair at intervals, something similar to the growth rings of trees. The number of rings, counted to a tenth of a millimeter, determines the owner's age.

POET'S CORNER

A TRIBUTE To Leonard Davis

Thou art laid to rest in the spring-time hours,
In the freshness of early feeding
While the dew yet lies on the new born flowers,
And winds through the wood-paths are stealing.

While yet life was gay to thine ardent eye,
While its rich hopes filled thy bosom,
But thy promise of being, which shone so fair,
Hath passed like a summer cloud in air.

Thy bosom is cold, which with love was warm,
And the grave embraces thy gentle form.
Thou art slumbering now in a lowly bed;
While Nature her garland is wreathing.

While the earth seems touched with a radiant spell,
And the air of delight is breathing;
While the day looks down with a mellow beam,
Where the tulips in light are blushing.

While bright wings play in the golden sun,
The tomb hath caressed thee, thou faded one?
The cloud lies cold on that settled brow,
Which was beaming with pleasure and youth but now.

Should we mourn that Death's Angel, on dusky wing,
O'er thy flowery path has driven?
That he crushed the buds of thy sunny spring—
That thy spirit is borne to heaven?

How soon will the visions of earth grow dim—
How soon will its hopes be faded,
And the heart that hath leaped to heaven's hymn,
With sadness and gloom be o'er-shaded?

The feelings are fresh but a little while,
We can bask but an hour in affection's smile,
Ere the friend and the lover have passed away—
Ere the anthem is sung o'er their wasting clay?

Then take thy rest in that shadowy hall,
In the mournful should repose,
There is no cloud on the soul to fall,
No dust o'er its light is closing.

It will shine in glory when time is o'er,
When each phantom of earth shall wither;
When the friends who deplore thee shall sigh no more,
And lie down in the dust together.

Though sad winds wail in the pine bough,
Thou art resting untroubled and calmly now;
With a seal of sleep on thy folded eye,
While thy spirit is glad in the courts on high.

O tulip flowers, a gentry born of May,
On his pillow of rest
Was placed the tulip he loved best.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

ESAU WAS THE AGGRIEVED PARTY; THE CONCESSIONS WERE ALMOST ENTIRELY ON HIS SIDE.

By WILLIAM E. GILROY

The reconciliation of Jacob and Esau came late, but it was very effectual when it came. Probably it was made possible by the fact that both men had grown in wisdom and also in moral outlook and character since the day when slackness in the one man and duplicity in the other had brought tragic separation between the brothers.

On the whole, the story of the reconciliation is more creditable to Esau than to Jacob. And it does much to restore the balance in one's estimate of the character of the man who sold his birthright.

Esau was the aggrieved party; the concessions were almost entirely on his side. Jacob approached their meeting with fear—a fear that was born of a guilty conscience. He knew that he had wronged his brother and his common sense led him to expect a "warm" reception.

However, Jacob had largely outgrown his selfishness and his trickery. Responsibility had sobered him, and it was to his credit that he was evidently more concerned for the safety of the women and children than for himself. At any rate, he protected them and went forward himself to meet the risk and the possible wrath of his brother.

He bowed himself to the ground seven times in token of his humility and perhaps as an acknowledgment of his repentance.

Esau played a brother's part. There were no reproaches. There was no unholty recollection to mar the complete magnanimity of his action. He ran to meet Jacob, embracing him and kissing him, while the two men wept, and then as Esau lifted his eyes and saw the great company with Jacob he was moved further. The things that Jacob had brought to win his favor he refused to accept, pleading that he had enough and offering rather a present on his own behalf.

It is a delightful interlude, or climax, in the story of the two brothers. The narrative lights up the whole drama like sunlight pouring through the clouds on a dark and troubled day.

The man of aggressive, selfish, ambition may become a strong and noble character when he is purged from his meanness and duplicity; and on the other hand a man who lacks ambition, who is rather slack and indifferent, may become a very gentle and admirable character and when he orders his life aright, faithful in the things that are needful, but unselfish, and generous and free entirely from greed and acquisitiveness.

The story is a record of how men of very diverse natures and characters may, under the operation of right forces, alike come to the better way of life. And it reveals how the finer things of character—fairness, courage, unselfishness and magnanimity—outlive all achievements of aggressiveness and acquisitiveness. Men are remembered ultimately for what they have been rather than for what they have gotten.

Insure today—tomorrow will be too late. If you drive a car, or ride in a car you should have one of the Dixon Telegraph's Accident Insurance Policies. They cost but $1.25 and you are insured for $100.00.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

Captain Gynemer had many unique records to his credit. He once caught a bullet while engaged in combat with an enemy plane. The bullet had passed through several parts of his own ship and its force was spent when it came to rest between Gynemer's finger and thumb. Seven times he was shot down from the air, each time escaping unscathed. But on the morning of Sept. 11, 1917, he sailed away to battle, and never returned... and to this day no reliable clue to his disappearance has been discovered.

Two Scientists Plunge to Death on Mt. McKinley

Treacherous ice crevasses of Alaska's Mount McKinley, highest peak on the North American continent, have claimed the lives of two more U. S. scientists, Allen Carpe, 36, New York, and his companion, Theodore Koven, 28, of New Jersey, according to reports from Fairbanks. Both Carpe (inset) who was leader of the expedition, and Koven fell into a crevasse. Koven managed to climb out but died of exposure before he was found. Carpe's body was not located. The larger photograph above shows Carpe on a previous expedition pictured peering into a crevasse similar to that in which he perished. The expedition was planned to study cosmic rays.

Rheumatic Goes Wild With Joy

Nurto Prescription Acts Like Magic, Making Bed-ridden Sufferers Get Up and Dance

Nothing has so startled the community as the effect of Nurto, a physician's prescription for rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia, sciatica and lumbago. It is now to be had at the local drug stores and is certainly a boon to humanity. Many won't believe such a thing possible as almost instant relief in even bed-ridden cases of excruciating pain. They say it must be a narcotic. But it isn't anything of the sort, and to prove it, get the regular package from the drug store. Try it as directed, and it doesn't take almost a miracle in driving away pain with two or three doses your money will be instantly refunded. Ask at the drug store for a box of Nurto on this money-back guarantee.
